MEXICO CAPITAL IN CHAOS, RELIEF WORKER REPORTS

Washington, July 30.—Response from the Mexican military factions to urgent representations by the United States government that they allow food supplies to reach the starving people of Mexico City were today awaited by officials here.

The dispatch of notes followed the receipt by Secretary Lansing of a communication from Charles J. O'Connor, in charge of the Red Cross relief work in Mexico City. He pictured conditions in the Mexican capital as more chaotic than ever and said people are actually dying of starvation despite the fact that they have the money with which to buy food.

The notes were sent last night to American representatives at Vera Cruz, Tampico and Mexico City for transmission to the faction leaders.

The action of the United States is a forerunner of a more definite step in the form of a final demand that holders of the warring factions settle their differences and restore peace in the southern republic.

The gravity of the situation had been added to as the result of an assault of an American named Mallory and the tramping upon of the American flag by Zapala troops a few days ago. The incident was reported to the state department in a message

Mrs. Emma Perry, 45 Lenox avenue, reported to police headquarters last evening the loss of three diamond rings and one opal pearl ring, believed to have been stolen from her apartment. Detective Hall was assigned to the case and visited the various pawn shops but was unable to find any trace of the missing jewelry.

About 8 o'clock last evening Lieutenant J. J. Hazel at headquarters was informed by the husband of Mrs. Perry that he had taken the rings and hid them and when informed of their loss by his better half he located the jewelry and gave them back with the advice that she procure a better hiding place for the articles hereafter.

The dog was killed and his head was sent to Middletown for examination. It is feared he may be afflicted with the rabies.

Proposals for a third German war loan are expected to be submitted to the Reichstag.

WOMEN WALK INTO IDEE FOUNDRY TO KEEP GERMANY GOING

Dortmund, Germany, July 30.—Women have so far supplanted men in some of the large industries of Dortmund that there are now 7,000 doing the ordinary work of their husbands or brothers, while fully 1,000 more are seeking positions.

Out of this total, 6,000 are in the iron works have to do work customarily considered too heavy for women. About one-quarter of the women are those whose husbands are at war; one-third are widows, and the balance are unmarried. The number who have to be dismissed because of inability to do the work is comparatively small.

WOMEN UNDERTAKERS AND GRAVE DIGGERS AT WORK IN VIENNA

Vienna, July 30.—According to the Austrian newspapers women are now employed in Vienna as undertakers and gravediggers, and generally for all work connected with funerals.

NORTH AND SOUTH CHURCHES HAVE INTERESTING HISTORYDifference of Opinion Resulted in Separation in 1830—Disagreements Forgotten They Will Probably Be Reunited.

The consolidation of the North and South Congregational churches of this city has proceeded one step further, when the members of the society of the North church met last night and approved the union as suggested by South church. Four committees have yet to meet and settle matters relating to the name, disposition of properties, etc., and report back for final vote of the two churches interested.

The present conference upon consolidation is the second to be made in three years. At that time it was suggested by the North church that the South church body incorporate them. No action was taken until recently when the South church invited the other church to consider the action to be taken is upon this request.

A glimpse into the history of both churches shows that the North church was one of the first to be established in Fairfield county, having been known as the Church of Christ which was established in Stratfield, as far back as June, 1695. It existed for many years in increasingly large meeting houses built where Park street now runs over what is known as Meeting House Hill. A second and larger church was built at Park and North avenues in 1717 and remained until 1835. The first congregational church was built at the corner of Broad and Bank streets in 1803, services first being divided equally between the older church and the new and afterwards two-thirds of the meetings were held in the new edifice.

In 1830 a difference of opinion arose between the pew-holders of the North church which resulted in the dissolution of 30 men and 78 women of the congregation who were given half of the church property and $1,000 towards a new structure.

This split in the body caused the erection of the South or Second Congregational church at the corner of Broad and Gilbert streets. While the structure was being completed meetings were held in the old high school building on State street. The Second Congregational church was dedicated November 30, 1836, the first minister being Rev. Nathaniel Hewitt, D. D.

The first church on John street was rebuilt in 1850 and the second church rebuilt in 1862, both flourishing during the Civil War period.

The ministry of both churches contains an imposing array of scholars, social talent and the deacons likewise hold the names of men most prominent in the affairs of Bridgeport since its foundation.

COLUMBUS' ANCHOR ON BOARD REPLIC OF "SANTA MARIA"Imitation of Great Discoverer's Flagship is in Bridgeport Waters.

Highly interesting from an historical viewpoint is the Santa Maria, the replica of the flagship in which Columbus sailed across the Atlantic to discover the New World, which is now anchored at Steeplechase dock beside the Stratford avenue bridge. The ship, with its various decks is a most fascinating sight, and needs only a short flight of fancy to imagine an intrepid mariner wandering about directing his men or mounting the hurricane deck and anxiously staring at the unknown which was before him.

Indeed, he is to be seen in wax, sitting at the table in his cabin which is on the quarter deck. Before him is spread the funny old map of 1487 which was in use by Columbus. The furniture of the cabin is that of the fifteenth century and there are carved sea chests, his bunk, also carved, and all about are battle axes, pikes, crossbows, sun dials, compasses, crucifixes and various other articles taken from the museums of Spain and dating back to the Columbian period. It seems that there is a scarcity of fifteenth century relics and people of authority have said that the Santa Maria contains the largest collection of antiques of this period that there is.

One of the most interesting relics aboard the ship is the original anchor of the Santa Maria. Columbus' ship was wrecked off the coast of Hayti in 1492. When Spain was building the great armada to attack England, the place where the ship went down and then sent over men to seek among the wreckage. One of the things they recovered was this old anchor, which was before Columbus' ship was wrecked. It had been submerged for 400 years, had greatly eaten away. The iron had flaked and on some of the flakes were deciphered the words, "Madrid, Spain, 1492." The anchor was made by hand in Madrid at that time. It was fashioned in pieces and then hand-welded together and more than a year was spent in making it. It has been greatly eaten away from its original weight of 3,500 pounds.

On the quarterdeck is mounted the old figurehead of the Nina, one of the other two ships of Columbus' fleet. The figurehead is a carved work of skill that was remarkable. The full rounded features and flowing curly locks of the typical Spanish beauty are discernible but little marred by the weather. The head is carved by Capt. W. T. Warfield, who has charge of the Santa Maria, claims that the figurehead is his mascot and affectionately refers to it as "Lizzie."

The prison and hospital are situated between ships. In the prison are two realistic wax representations of the two life convicts whom Queen Isabella pardoned to take the voyage as part of Columbus' expedition. On their return they were to be set free. However they mutinied on the high seas and the commander was forced to put them in irons in the prison. The hospital was nothing but a place, and not a very comfortable place at that, where the sick man might lay.

The new Santa Maria was built in Cadiz, Spain, in 1890, and was taken across the Atlantic under her own sail in command of Captain Concas of the Spanish navy. More than 5,000 yards of canvas were used and a crew of 45 in making the voyage. From Hampton Roads, she was towed through the Bay of Fundy, the St. Lawrence river, and the Great Lakes to Chicago, where the Columbian exposition was being held. Here, on behalf of the government, Captain Concas presented her to the government of the United States. During her stay in Chicago more than 4,000, 000 people visited her. Two years ago last spring she started on her trip to the Pacific coast, stopping at all the large cities enroute. Her commanders expect to make San Francisco the latter part of October, thus getting in the last two months at the Panama exposition.

The Santa Maria is in command of Charles Stephenson, the former rowing coach of Harvard university, and in charge of Captain Warfield. She will be stationed at the Steeplechase dock for the coming two weeks and will be open to the public from 10 a. m. to 10 p. m. daily.

Youth Charged With Stealing Copper Is Arrested In Detroit

Word was received last evening by Superintendent Eugene E. Burningham from the police authorities in Detroit, Mich., stating that Frank Cogan, implicated in the recent theft of 200 ingots of copper, the property of the Bridgeport Brass Co., and valued at $1,200, taken from a freight car in the East End yards of the New Haven road, has been apprehended by the authorities of that place. Detective George Fox of the local detective bureau, left last night for Detroit and is expected back with his prisoner tomorrow. Grover Cogan, a brother, also implicated, is now awaiting trial in the superior court, bonds being fixed at $2,000.

CANAL EMPLOYEES FORM ASSOCIATION OF MUTUAL INTEREST

Panama, July 30.—The gold employees of the Panama Canal have about completed an organization for the purpose of looking after their interests in Washington and for the canal employees relative to conditions of employment and other matters. One of the chief objects will be to look after measures to be brought before Congress regarding longevity pay.

The organization has not yet been given a name but it probably will be known as the Panama Canal Employees' Association. A large fund has been subscribed to pay the expenses of a committee recently sent to Washington to obtain the rescinding of an executive order under which rent was being charged for quarters on the Canal Zone. This committee was successful.

This success was the direct cause of the new organization since it demonstrated, according to moving spirit, what could be done if an organized effort is made. The new association purposes to have prepared and presented in Congress a measure providing for suitable reward for the civil and military employees just as the various army and navy officers have been rewarded.

The employees will contend that this reward should be in the shape of longevity pay so that those who have been on the isthmus for a certain number of years will be given a yearly increase in salary. This is to insure all employees whether members of unions or not. It is likely that to this bill a pension system will be appended.

The association already has gathered a fund of about $25,000 from assessments made upon all the employees practically all of whom already have joined and have paid at least a portion of their assessments. A weekly paper will be started which will be distributed to all the employees and also to many government officials in Washington as well as to every member of Congress.

FRENCH MINISTRY OF WAR KEPT BUSY WITH ESTATES OF SOLDIERS

Paris, July 30.—The "Souvenir Depositionnaire" is the name given to a dark gray building in the rue de l'Université, where nearest relatives come by the hundreds to claim the estates of soldiers killed in battle. The estate of the soldiers as it comes from the hands of his regiment, his comrades, a surgeon or a hospital may be a fortune of a trunk or a trinket.

Family mementos, miniatures, medallions worn as talismans next the heart in battle, cigarette lighters, broken pocket-knives, rings and other trifles, precious to the bearer by secrets which have gone with him into the grave; last requests, will written on scraps of paper, unfinished blood-stained, or even on pieces of shirt in blood, sometimes nothing

WISE AND OTHERWISE

Some of the young married women think it strange when they get home from an automobile ride their husbands have done nothing about getting supper.

About a year ago now the newspapers were printing editorials on the impossibility of another great war in Europe.

The people who are buying the bonds of European governments must have more confidence in those governments' promises to pay than in their other promises.

It is pretty hard to make any money off summer boarders when they will persist in sitting up and burning oil or electricity after 8 p. m.

Many young men are surprised that the Boss persistently ignores the fact that they are uncommonly well posted on the baseball situation.

Owing to the high cost of necessities like rum and tobacco, many men are obliged to forego their families the educational advantages of a summer trip around the country.

It is claimed that the war is cutting down the number of marriages. But married couples can't expect to avoid war even with peace in Europe.

Many people think lawn tennis is a rude game, and if they get a racket in their hands they think the way to play is to knock the ball over the nearby houses.

It is considered desirable for the farmers to take summer boarders, as they dispose of a lot of fruit and vegetables that the cattle can't eat.

With the growing threat to the independence of Holland, it would seem as if the Dutch might well fill Andrew Carnegie's peace palace with a good supply of shrapnel.
